WHAT DO YOU WANT TO DO WITH YOUR LIFE?

10
Minutes

Imagine you are 80 years old, looking back on your journey in life. What contribution would make you feel your time was well spent? Consider not just career achievements, but the impact you hope to have, the relationships you wish to nurture, the experiences that would bring you joy, and the person you aspire to become. Think beyond societal expectations or others' definitions of success, and instead focus on what would give your unique existence meaning, purpose, and fulfilment.

Write your answer here:

Hint: What mark do you want to leave on the world, however large or small, that would make you think, "Yes, this is why I was here"?

WHAT ARE YOUR BIGGEST OBSTACLES?

10
Minutes

What stands between you and your dreams? Look beyond surface-level excuses to identify the deeper patterns that repeatedly block your progress. Are your obstacles primarily external circumstances, or internal battles with fear, perfectionism, or self-doubt? Consider which obstacles you've created as protective mechanisms that once served you but may now be limiting your growth.

Write your answer here:

Hint: Recognise that naming your obstacles isn't admitting defeat, we can only tackle what we can see.

What is excitingly ambitious to you?

WHAT WOULD IT MEAN?

What would your life be like if you've achieved this goal? Be specific.

IS IT?

☐ Your own thing? Is this goal just for you, not for school, not your boss, not your parents?

☐ Objectively measurable? When you achieve it, anyone could come along and agree that you've done it?

☐ Independent from others' opinions? The goal is not to change someone else?

HOW TO SET DAILY TASKS

1. Set 1 major task, this is the task that is the hardest, most challenging but if you made progress in this task it would make you proud and make other tasks easier.
2. Do task 1 first.
3. Set up to 4 minor tasks, don't go over 4. The brain can hold 5 numbers easily, 5 is a doable and understandable size.
